

Information & Order Form

w@rn is the acclaimed play about domestic abuse, written by Helen Nelder, whose personal experience of an abusive relationship lends the work an unparalleled accuracy and integrity. For several years, w@rn has been performed to provide a powerful and effective centerpiece for training events and discussion forums. Now, due to popular demand, the play has been published for wider distribution.

w@rn comprehensively depicts various forms of abuse, as well as the surrounding issues, including the impact on children and the aftermath of daring to leave. Uniquely, it does this in a balanced, realistic and accessible way, breaking away from many of the stereotypes associated with the subject. As a result, it allows a much clearer insight into how it really feels to be caught in an abusive relationship.
